"This well established guidebook was originally published in 1974, and was the first guidebook ever to use the title 'Access' referring to access by disabled people. Later editions were published in 1985, 1993 and 2008.

The website includes updated information and is available as a book or can be downloaded in PDF format from the website from June 2008."

Renting an electric scooter

Thanks to Sally sending me a link, I have found out that it is possible to rent an electric scooter when you come to Paris and Disney.

I received a letter from Mister Dominique Dupuis who wrote that their company, Access Tourisme Service, has been active in the field of organizing trips and transportation for the handicap since 1988.

One of their services is to rent medical equipment for use in hotels and at Disney. An example of their rentals are manual and electric wheel chairs, scooters, beds, hoists, etc.

Their transportation help comes with a driver. They provide hotel transfers and city tours, hotel reservations,

B&B reservations, housing, train ticket booking, guides, visits and tours.

Their services are available in Nice, Lyon, Bordeaux, Rennes, Toulouse, Strasbourg, etc.

Access Tourisme provides "à la carte" services for clients, based on their needs.

Paris en fauteuil - Paris in a wheelchair

Fauteuil – Wheelchair

Authors: Lucie Fontaine and Jean-Baptiste Nanta
ISBN : 2840963507
Price: 6 euros
Paperback pocket size, 112 pages
Publisher: Parigramme

I have found a great book published by Parigramme, with access information for restaurants, museums, movie theatres and theatres for plays, buses, metros, RER, etc.

Although it is in French, the names and symbols are universal.

The book "Paris en fauteuil" is dated 2004, and I will inquire as to updates.

If you are able to find this book, it not only gives accessibility information (yes or no) but with symbols will tell you about the toilets:

WC Toilets inaccessible to wheelchairs

WC Toilets accessible to wheelchairs - you can enter and close the door behind you, but there is no handle to grab on to.

WC+ Toilets accessible with a grab handle

 Accessible without help; you might have one small step but otherwise, no obstacles. You can enter alone or with a the helping hand of someone -- either to make the step of a couple of inches or to open a door)

 Accessible with help - several steps or cobblestones.

Contact me for specific names and addresses of restaurants, theatres, etc.

Luxury toilets - POINTWC

This was a treat after having experienced several disappointing public toilets recently.

When you walk in you are greeted and told that it will cost 1 euro. Don't fret about paying; it will be worth it.

These are modern stalls, each with a different theme: chic, high tech, BCBG, Glam Rock, kid, etc.

In one, Kids, you have a toilet for mom and one for the little one.

If you need to change a baby, pull up the changing table and Eric Salles or someone from his team will provide you with a changing mat and large, soft towel.

I wrote an article about places to change a baby's diaper and other child care information.

If you need to freshen up, ask for the BCBG room and they will bring you a padded stool. Inside the BCBG room is a vanity mirror and sink.

If you need decorating items for your bathroom, they have them for sale.

If you need an hygienic product, diaper, fake nails, etc. the machine can dispense it for you.

Want a cup a coffee? Make your choice.

PointWC is a real oasis in a corner of a shopping gallery and worthy of your visit.

Two of the stalls are designed with not only families in mind for those with limited mobility.

"We have worked with the Association Française des Paralysé de France to build the. two cabines that are larger for a wheel chair.... Our staff has been trained to help disabled people," said Mr. Salles.

"Handrails will be installed very soon", he said.

Transportation information

Infomobi.com

The Infomobi.com website provides travel services using public transportation. The website is in French, contact me and I can help you translate its information.

Their telephone number is 08 10 64 64 64. Their office is open Monday to Friday between 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Saturday from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Their offices are closed Sunday and holidays.

If you need bus access, Infomobi.com photos showing how the bus ramp works.

You will find maps and accessibility information, personalized itineraries (you can contact them ahead of time to establish when help will be needed, for example) -- download the map

An additional maps is available for Ile-de-France (Paris is part of this department).

These maps will help you while searching the internet; hard copies are available in metro stations (accessible only by stairs).

Take the RER

Although the metro is not really set up for wheelchairs, the many RER stations are. The list on the RATP website, however, is incomplete. If you ask questions of anyone not associated with the RER lines specifically, they have no clue. In fact, they do not realize that the maps they give out contain the very information that you are looking for.

For example, ask for Map #1 (Plan des lignes) at any metro station or "le Club" office. Inside you will see a map of the RER lines in Ile-de-France (Paris is in the Département no. 75)

RER instructions

RER A - Buy a day pass called Mobilis (buy zone 1-5 between Disneyland and downtown Paris).

The Disneyland stop is called Marne-la-Vallée-Chessy. It lies in zone 5 (Paris lies in zones 1 and 2).

Use this Mobilis pass for all buses and metros and RER's (midnight to midnight).

This ticket can be purchased in advanced. Once validated in the RER or metro, you only need show it on the bus -- do not revalidate it.

The RER A travels from Marne-la-Vallée often. The station is accessible to wheelchairs.

When you go to buy your ticket into Paris they will call someone to assist you.

Tell them your end station so it can be determined if you will need assistance at that end.

If your end station is Auber (for the Opera, Galeries Lafayette, Printemps, etc.) you will not need assistance. Just make sure that the elevator is working -- they will check that for you if you ask.

Pick up a map (Plan 1 - plan des lignes) at any RER or metro station.

It will show you which stations have accessibility to elevators.

Transportation options

The Paris tourist office offers a comprehensive list of transportation options for disabled access. Click on "Maps & transport" and then "Disabled access" to the left.

This website provides the latest news, "rando" information -- get together with roller skaters and other means of non-motorized wheel traveling activities.

They offer the site of the month, guides, maps, promenades, transport information, a list of WC accessibility at restaurants, theatres, churches, etc.

If anyone is interested, I will be trying to translate as much as possible for you soon. Please let me know.

Travelers with limited mobility -- advice from Madeleine Burnel

While working on one of my museum articles I met a wonderful and energetic individual.

Madeleine Burnel lives in the Alsace region and travels around France. Her limited mobility due to Multiple Sclerosis (MS) is not going to handicap her!

She spent a week in Paris, and the following is a list of places that have some assistance for the handicapped. She was able to visit them and pass on her advice:

Classic places to visit and off the beaten path

Visit the Eiffel Tower - 1st and 2nd levels!

Bâteaux - Mouches

Madeleine recommends embarking at Pont de l'Alma and the Aihrop car can take you directly to the boat. There is an incline on the boarding platform and then a five steps to descend on to the boat. The personnel will help you.

Hôtel Salé - Musée Picasso -5 rue de Thorigny, Paris 3rd
Beautiful 18th century hôtel particulier housing the Picasso museum. They have an elevator for the handicapped and a ramp in the basement section.

Two cautions: the entry courtyard is cobblestone and the gift shop and library are not wheelchair accessible.

Centre Georges Pompidou (also known as Beaubourg), rue Beaubourg, Paris 3rd
Number of exhibitions that are accessible with the elevator.

Musée de la Poupée - across the street from 22 rue Beaubourg - Impasse Berthaud
For Madeleine this was a whole new universe: small courtyard, small interior and the cobblestones!!!

Important collection of dolls from 1850 to today presented in lively vignette scenes representing each period.

It is accessible, three steps to walk up leaving the last room of the permanent display and entering the temporary exhibition room. (This is where we met and the personnel were extremely helpful in helping Madeleine up those steps.)

Rue Rambuteau has its ambiance, its close by, with lots of shops and cafés. The sidewalks, however, are difficult and cumbersome.

Musée de la Vie Romantique, 16 rue Chaptal, Paris 75009
The interior courtyard is full of cobblestones. The interior is accessible with either cane or crutches, no elevator. Stairs have a ramp.

This the house of Ary Scheffer, a royal painter during the reign of Louis Philippe. Great names of the period could be found visiting this home: Georges Sand, Liszt, Chopin - a whole floor of the museum is devoted to them).

Temporary exhibits of romantic painters. Beautiful winter garden and park.

Rue de Rivoli

You can stroll along the rue de Rivoli with its souvenir shops and stores and affluent buildings. Store entrances are at ground level and most sidewalks ramp to the street.

Musée de la Mode et du Textile - 107 rue de Rivoli
Accessible with elevator to visit the Musée de la Mode et du Textile, Musée de la Publicité and Musée des Arts Décoratifs (one entry price). Their website is available in English.

Jardin des Tuileries, rue de Rivoli
One entry around the middle is accessible for the handicapped; otherwise there are steps involved.

At this entrance there is a ramp used for baby carriages and wheelchairs. This is a favorite park for mothers with children for its fountains and paths.

Musée Jacquemart-André - 158 Boulevard Haussmann - Paris 8th

Lots of stairs, no elevators, but the personnel really made an effort and helped her to the maximum. She suggests visiting the tea salon before your departure from this beautiful home from the Napoleon III era.

Madeleine also has tips on visiting other French cities. Contact me for further information e-mail Colleen.

Paris Tourism

Awareness of the importance of modifying structures and sensitivity awareness in the arena of Paris tourism is relatively new and improving constantly.

Buses have been constructed to increase the ease of using public transportation.

The lower steps and mid-doors allow easier accessibility for wheel chairs, baby carriages and those who use support apparatus to move around.

New construction built after 1978 is required to have accessibility for those with limited mobility.

The whole idea of awareness in the tourist industry only dates from 1997.

The labeling in place dates from 2001 and is geared toward four specific handicaps: motor, mental, visual and auditory.

Numerous venues are now accessible and the transportation system (buses and RER) are improving all the time.

Versailles

Versailles has electric vehicles for persons with limited mobility.

This makes it possible for you to wander along five itineraries, departure point South Terrace (discovery of the Gardens, Trianon and the Queen's Hamlet, tour of the Grand Canal, complete visit of the Estate) – For more information, telephone: 01 39 66 97 66 .

Apparently, there is also an elevator that will bring you to the garden level if you do not wish to use the electrical vehicles.

The Victor Hugo museum has now received the "Tourisme et Handicap" label.

The museum has an elevator that permits access to all floors as well as toilets (reception area) that meet the "Tourisme et Handicap" standards. Two parking spots are available in front of the museum.

The apartment is situated on the 2nd floor of the Hôtel de Rohan Guéméné, Place des Vosges that Hugo rented for 16 years (1832-1848). The other is Hauteville House, the only house that he owned where he lived for 15 years (1856 to 1870).

The museum located in the Place des Vosges was opened in 1902, celebrating the 100 year anniversary of his birth. It was the inspiration of Paul Meurice (1818-1905), a long-time friend and ardent defender of Hugo and his work.

This was the first museum dedicated to his works and letters according to the Paris mayor's office.

The Petit Palais is accessible as well as their dining facility; however, the handicap stall in the toilet opens inward and not outward -- there is no bar.

The Petit Palais has a nice café with a view over the interior gardens. The food is good and the staff is very helpful. A typical lunch of quiche with salad and dessert runs about 10 euros.

The Grand Palais is accessible along 3, avenue du Général-Eisenhower, with an exterior lift to the left of the stairs. They have a cafeteria inside.

Promenade Plantée

This is a walk along an ancient railway line that has been turned into a park above ground. It stretches 4.5 km between la Bastille and the Bois de Vincennes, was created in 1993 and covers a surface of 65,000 m². Below your feet is le Viaduc des Arts, art and design stores installed in the vaults of the old train line. Access to the promenade is on the avenue Daumesnil at the Bois de Vincennes as well as by stairs and elevators along the way. The Promenade Plantée is located in the 12th arrondissement. One of the closest metro is Bastille.

Open: 8 a.m. during the week and 9 a.m. the weekends the closing times vary according to the season:
 Closing time: January: 5:30 p.m.
 February: 6 p.m.
 March: 7 p.m.

 May 15 to August 31: 9:30 p.m.
 September: 8:30 p.m.
 October: 8 p.m.
 End of October to November 15: 6 p.m.
 November 15 to December 31: 5:30 p.m.

Children's play area: with a sandbox, ping pong tables, lawns, dogs are allowed on a leash, a doggie park is between the Reuilly tunnel (le tunnel de Reuilly) and the Bois de Vincennes.

The Promenade Plantée is handicap accessible.

RER B Elevator access

An elevator is under construction at the Saint-Michel Notre-Dame RER station (rue Xavier Privas). an RATP agent will be available to help you access the platform (quai). The scheduled opening is 2008. At this time, the transportation agency is not providing the names of other stations accessible. This is a great start!

This is good news if the airport stations (CDG/Roissy and ORY) will also be included. I will keep checking.

Remember the buses are accessible to wheel chairs and baby strollers so enjoy Paris above ground!

For more information about RER elevator accessibility, pick up a map No. 1 at any RER or metro station.

At top of the page with the RER map, you will see the stations and those designated with the  symbol. The red asterisk means that assistance is needed. Just ask at the ticket counter or push the red button at the elevator.
